1	The syllabus needs feedback from Industry experts so that students will be ready to face industrial challenges, in addition, if possible, visits to industries, clinical lab, research institutes etc. For the final year students will add value	Industry expert feedback on curriculum is already a part of the regular academic review process. Feedback is collected through BOS (Board of Studies) meetings and advisory panels to ensure the curriculum remains aligned with current industry trends and expectations. Industrial visits, clinical laboratory exposures, and research institute tours are regularly conducted for final-year students to provide real-world insights and practical learning experiences. For the 2025–26 academic year, these initiatives will be further strengthened by: • Expanding partnerships with more industries and research organizations. • Scheduling additional field visits and guest lectures by industry professionals. • Documenting expert feedback for structured curriculum revision processes. These activities are institutionalized as part of regular academic practice and are continually improved to enhance student readiness for industrial and research careers.
